NORTH DANVILLE. Death of Mr. Bailey.

Charles Minor Bailey died at his home here Monday night, April 19, of gastritis, following the grip, and complicated with a serious heart trouble, aged 79 years and 5 months, Mr. Bailey was born in Potham, Canada, Nov. 28, 1829, the oldest son of Abijah and Lydia Hildreth Bailey. His father moved into the states soon after his birth and it was through his own determination and industry that he obtained his education. He then taught school several winters. For his first wife Mr. Bailey married Mary Conant of Greensboro, who only lived two or three years. Oct. 26, 1859, he married Mary Blake of Greensboro, who was the mother of his four children, Lucy Chapin, Mrs. R. B. Kinerson of Peacham, Charles F., chief engineer in the ship building docks at Newport News, Va., Nellie M., Mrs. C. G. Farrington of South Walden, and Harriet M. Mrs. A. L. Batten, who lives on the home farm at East Hardwick. Mrs. Mary Blake Bailey died April 30, 1884, and Dec. 16, 1885, Mr. Bailey married Calista M. Batchelor of North Danville, who died in March, 1901. Nov. 27, 1902, Mr. Bailey married Harriet Batchelor and bought the Batchelor farm at North Danville, where he has since lived. Mr. Bailey was an honorable, upright christian, a kind father and as has been remarked he seemed to have no old age. His cheerful nature kept him young. All through his last sickness, when he suffered extremely, he made no complaint whatever, but always said he was "all right." Mr. Bailey held the office of deacon at East Hardwick many years. He leaves one own sister, Mrs. Alphonso Garvin of Craftsbury, and a half-brother, John Bailey of Cambridge Junction. The funeral was held at the home and the remains carried to East Hardwick and laid in the family lot. "Deacon Charles M. Bailey was one of nature's noble men, courtly, gentle and kind; always cheerful and optimistic. He was much loved as a neighbor and highly esteemed as a christian. For some years he has been a deacon of the Congregational church of East Hardwick until he took up his residence in North Danville, where he united with the Congregational church of Danville Green. Here he was a regular attendant and hearty supporter. His death will be greatly felt by his church and friends. Here is a man who may truly be said to have fallen asleep in Jesus. 'Everything is all right. God is very good to me, were the last words before his death. Complaint was foreign to him. He was a christian gentleman of the old school.

Death of Mr. Adams. Charles Adams died very suddenly

Monday evening, April 26. He had not been well for the past two years, owing to heart disease, combined with other troubles contracted in the Civil War, but, although for the last week of his life he was worse than usual, he was not considered dangerously ill and the end came without warning. Mr. Adams, son of Cornelius and Harriet Adams, was born in Waterford, December 2, 1840. During his boyhood he moved with his father's family to Danville. January 1, 1867, he was married to Mary Gibbs of Barnard, who died October 23, 1871. Their short was blessed by three children. September 15, 1875, he was married to Chloe T. English of Woodstock, and two children were born to them. Shortly after his second marriage he moved to East Peacham, where he spent the remainder of his days. He leaves his wife and two children, Daniel L. and Elizabeth S., also a brother and a sister. May 14, 1862, he was mustered into the U. S. service in Company G, 4th Regiment of Vermont Volunteer Infantry. Taken prisoner at the battle of Weldon Railroad, Virginia, June 23, 1864, he was sent to Andersonville for five months and then removed to Florence, S. C., remaining there in prison three months and 14 days. He was paroled February 28, 1865, and gun in the hands of a rebel guard, while on his way to prison. He was ordered home and at Brattleboro, April 21, 1865, was discharged by reason of the expiration of his term of service. Mr. Adams was a member of the Congregational church, a generous husband and tather, a kind neighbor and a good citizen. For many years he had been a member of Washburn Lodge, No. 92, F. & A. M.; of Connecticut River Lodge, No. 7, L. O. O. F; of the Diamond Chapter O. E. S.; also of the X. C. Stevens Post, No. 83, in which he had held the highest office, that of commander. The tuneral was held at the house Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. J. K. Williams officiating, aided by the male quartet. There was a profusion of lovely flowers. The X. C. Stevens Post attended in a body and acted as escort to the grave where the G. A. R. burial service was used.

The interment was in Peacham cemetery. Big Blaze at East Peacham.

The store owned by George W. Esden. and the house and barn of George Smith, were destroyed by fire Wednes-day night. Mr. Esden left his store about 9.30 in the evening. He went to his home just across the street, looked out of the window and saw the store ablaze. The alarm was at lonce given, which by the aid of so many rural telephones quickly called forth a large crowd but it was impossible to save the store and all efforts were then directed toward the dwelling of Mr. Smith, which practically joins the store, but the flames made such rapid headway it was impossible to check them, although some remained on the burning roof until in great danger. Very little was saved from the store except what was in the postoffice and the books. In Mr. Smith's house most of the furniture was taken out, but they lost many valuable things that were packed away in closets and upstairs, also many things in the cellar. Mr. Esden carried an insurance of $5000 on his goods and the building was also insured. The buildings of Mr. Smith were insured for $600. Both parties will ose considerable. It is not definitely known just how the fire started, but it s thought it might have caught front a large hanging lamp, as that was where the fire first broke through the floor.
